OVERVIEW

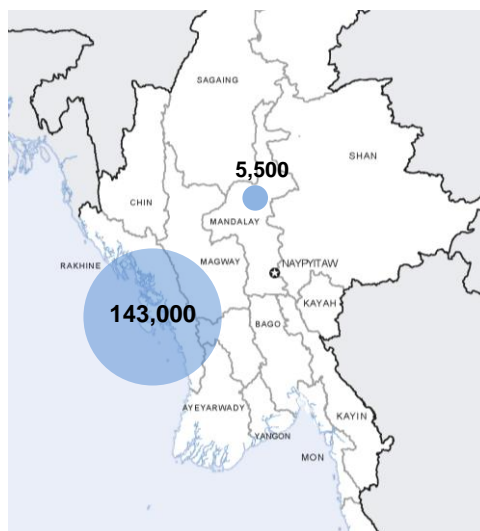

*required for Rakhine and Kachin Response Plans

The inter-communal violence in June and October 2012 resulted in at least 143,000 people being displaced across Rakhine State. In addition, at least 36,000 vulnerable people in 113 isolated villages have no or limited access to job opportunities and basic services due to continued restrictions on movement.

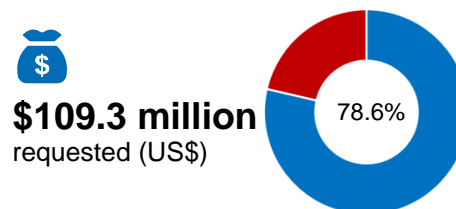

The conflict in Kachin and northern Shan States has displaced an estimated 100,000 people, including more than 52,000 in areas beyond Government control. Renewed clashes in November 2013 displaced more than 2,400 people in Mansi, southern Kachin State, including 1,600 people from Nam Lim Pa who were displaced for the second time. Inter-agency cross-line mission to IDP camps in areas beyond government control brought relief items to more than 26,000 IDPs, along with training workshops and needs-assessments at the camps.

It is important for humanitarian organisations to have full and unimpeded access to all affected communities across Myanmar and to be able to deliver assistance based on the evidence of people's needs, regardless of their background. Increased community resistance since October 2013 has caused serious impediment for humanitarian operations and development work in Rakhine. Insecurity and cumbersome bureaucratic processes are also major constraints.

Kachin Response Plan Funding

The March to December 2013 Kachin Response Plan requests US$50.9 million to provide assistance (camp coordination and camp management, education, food, health, livelihoods, NFIs, nutrition, protection, shelter, and WASH) to some 100,000 IDPs and 20,000 families hosting IDPs across Kachin State.

As of 30 November 2013, only $25.7 million (50.5 per cent) has been received.

South-East IDP figures over many years

Up to 400,000 people in 36 townships in South-East Myanmar continue to be displaced after many years. Over 10,000 were reportedly displaced between August 2011 and July 2012. Sustainability of any IDP return depends on physical security, livelihood opportunities, and the availability of basic services.
